Noen Wong Fort

Located at Tambon Noen Ka Cha, on Highway No. 3147, the wall of the fort was built during the reign of King Rama III as a defending measure against an invasion from Vietnamese forces. Inside the fort, there are several interesting places such as the city shrine of King Taksin and the Wat Yothanimit built in Chinese-style architecture. Noen Wong Fort houses the National Maritime Museum where investigation and conservation techniques are explained and finds from the seabed of the Gulf of Thailand are on display. You will find a full scale model of an ancient Thai merchant junk which you can explore. The Museum offers a lot of information about the history of Thai naval trading and its importance to the whole of the nation.

After the visit to the Noen Wong Fort you will be heading for Chanthaburi to pay a visit at a gems manufacture where you will be shown how a raw stone becomes a beautiful jewel.
